It was late last night when the boss came home ask- in for his la- dy the on- ly an- swer that he got "She's gone with the Gyp- sy Da- vy, she's gone with the Gyp- sy Dave

Go saddle for me a buckskin horse and a hundred dollar saddle point out to me their wagon tracks and after them I'll travel, after them I'll ride

He had not rode to the midnight moon when he saw the campfire gleaming he heard the notes of the big guitar and the voice of the Gypsy singin that song of the Gypsy Dave

There in the light of the campin fire he saw her fair face beamin her heart in tune with the big guitar and the voice of the Gypsy singin that song of the Gypsy Dave

Have you forsaken your house and home, have you forsaken your baby? have you forsaken your husband dear, to go with the Gypsy Davy?
and sing with the Gypsy Davy? that song of the Gypsy Dave?

Yes I've forsaken my husband dear to go with the Gypsy Davy and I've forsaken my mansion high but not my blue-eyed baby not my blue-eyed babe

She smiled to leave her husband dear to go with the Gypsy Davy but the tears came a-tricklin down her cheeks to think about the blue-eyed baby pretty little blue-eyed babe

Take off take off your buckskin gloves made of Spanish leather give to my your lily-white hand and we'll ride home together home again we'll ride

No I won't take off my buckskin gloves made of Spanish leather I'll go my way from day to day and sing with the Gypsy Davy that song of the Gypsy Davy,
that song of the Gypsy Davy
